Welcome to the Alaska Grown Source Book - your resource for local food and farm products. We have listed all farm and ranch operations that have provided their information.

The Alaska Grown Source Book provides information about statewide resources and contacts relevant to Alaska agriculture. You will first find a list of statewide CSA & U Pick businesses, followed by a list of farmers markets broken out by regions, corresponding to the map at left. The balance of the book is dedicated to individual farm listings, organized by region and alphabetized by farm name.

We hope you enjoy the Alaska Grown Source Book and find this directory to be useful. We encourage you to become an active Alaska Grown buyer, looking for the logo in grocery stores, at farmers markets and in your favorite restaurant.

Governor Sean Parnell STATE OF ALASKA

Dear Alaskans,

As citizens of this great state, we have the unique opportunity to enjoy a bounty of natural resources available to us. It may be landscaping our yards using locally grown plants, eating fresh, local foods, or providing high-quality hay for our livestock. Products grown locally are plentiful and support our communities, economies, and Alaska's natural resources.

The Alaska Grown Source Book offers Alaskans a resource for locating Alaska Grown products. This guide provides information on everything from growing peonies to sustainable living or locating a farm for fresh produce. It is important to know where our food comes from and how our food is grown. By looking for the Alaska Grown symbol, you can guarantee that you are supporting fellow Alaskans in producing high-quality, local products.

We continually encourage the consumption of Alaska Grown products in schools and restaurants. We are thankful to see Alaska Grown products on store shelves throughout the state and for the increase in farmers' markets in communities all across Alaska. This year we were proud to serve Alaskan Grown food at the Governor's Family picnics throughout the state.

We are grateful for your commitment to supporting Alaskan farmers and processors. I encourage you to look for the Alaskan Grown symbol when shopping or dining out – "Look, Ask, and Buy" Alaska Grown!

Best regards,

A handwritten signature in cursive script that reads "Sean Parnell".

Sean Parnell
Governor

HOW TO USE THE ALASKA GROWN SOURCE BOOK

We've streamlined the layout for Alaska Grown Source Book. Please take a moment to familiarize yourself with the icons that may appear on each business listing, and learn what they mean.

Businesses which are a part of the Division of Agriculture's Alaska Grown® program show the logo above their contact details.

This pixelated graphic is called a QR code. It works like a barcode for web addresses. If you have a smartphone with a QR code reader app, you can point your phone's camera at the QR code to be taken directly to a business's website. Free QR code reader apps are available for most phones and mobile devices.

Businesses which offer customers the chance to pick their own produce are indicated by the 'U-Pick' icon.

CSA stands for 'Community Supported Agriculture'. Businesses with the CSA basket graphic offer some form of subscription service for regular purchases. Ask for details!

Businesses that accept vouchers from the Alaska WIC (Women, Infants, Children) program, Senior Farmer's Market Coupons, and Supplemental Nutrition Assistance Program (SNAP) nutrition benefits show the WIC logo. Further information about this program can be found at: www.hss.state.ak.us/dpa/programs/nutri/.

Businesses with a convenient farm stand location for customers are indicated with the Farm Stand icon.

Businesses with products that were certified in 2012 as Organic by the United States Department of Agriculture show the USDA Organic label. This certification assures that only organic-approved products have been used in the production of the approved food products. Learn more about organic certification on the USDA's website, at www.ams.usda.gov/AMSv1.0/NOP. Certification must be renewed yearly. Only products are certified, not farms. Contact grower for more details.

Community Supported Agriculture (CSA) Quick Reference

What is CSA?

Community Supported Agriculture is a partnership between a local farm and a community of “shareholder” consumers. It is a relationship of mutual support and commitment in which a consumer purchases a “share” of what the farm produces during a growing season and then receives weekly deliveries of whatever is ready for harvest each week. The arrangement guarantees the farmer financial support when it is most needed early in the growing season and in return offers members a wide variety of locally seasonal foods harvested at their peak of freshness, ripeness, flavor, and vitamin and mineral content. Ultimately, CSAs create what is being termed “agriculture-supported communities” where small local farms can stay afloat and help to create healthier and more sustainable communities for all.

Dan Proulx, Fairbanks
907-374-3716

Dan.Proulx@alaska.gov

Erik Johnson, Palmer
907-761-3863

Erik.Johnson@alaska.gov

Services: The Division makes agricultural land available in a range of parcel sizes, as dictated by regional and local demand for land sales, grazing leases and permits. This section also monitors compliance with agricultural covenants, including farm conservation plans and development requirements.

Agricultural Revolving Loan Fund

dnr.alaska.gov/ag/ag_arlf.htm

Amanda Swanson,
Loan Officer
907-761-3869

Amanda.Swanson@alaska.gov

Services: The Agricultural Revolving Loan Fund (ARLF) promotes agricultural development by offering moderate interest rate loans to Alaska producers. Loan funds may only be used for agricultural production or processing operations. See our web-site for details on the loans we offer.

Alaska Plant Materials Center

plants.alaska.gov

Stoney Wright,
Manager
907-745-4469

Stoney.Wright@alaska.gov

Services: The Alaska Plant Materials Center (PMC) provides testing, production, development and distribution of plant materials to meet environmental requirements and promote commercial development of native species. The PMC offers seed cleaning services and is a resource for potato growing information and certified seed potatoes.

Inspection Services

dnr.alaska.gov/ag/ag_is.htm

Doug Warner,
Inspection Manager
907-741-3861
