TYPES OF TITLE

A married couple, as tenants by the entirety

This option is only available for married persons, e.g., “John Q. Smith and Deborah R. Smith, a married couple, as tenants by the entirety”. The law presumes tenancy by the entirety for a married couple unless it is expressly declared otherwise. (AS 34.15.110)

As tenants in common

A married couple can choose to purchase property together as tenants in common. A married couple are encouraged to seek the services of an attorney before selecting this form of tenancy. Those persons who wish to purchase property together can do so as tenants in common. It is possible for each person to have a different marital status. This example illustrates a possible combination, e.g., “William P. Jones, a married person, Sandra S. Smith, a single person, and Andrew X. Read and Barbara A. Read, a married couple; as tenants in common.” There is no right of survivorship for the tenants under this type of tenancy.

Title taken individually

If just one purchaser, whether single or married, that person can only select this option.
