

Historic preservation is embedded in the Alaska State Parks' mission statement. Our unique Alaska State Historical Parks (SHP) and State Historical Sites (SHS) represent several eras of Alaska's history and are as diverse as the places in which they reside: tour a hard-rock gold mining camp at Independence Mine SHP in Palmer; explore a WW II Army artillery base at Fort Abernethy SHP in Kodiak; or view Tlingit and Aida designs on the totem poles and the clan house at Totem Bight SHP in Ketchikan.

trail system. Trails range from paved, ADA accessible paths to challenging mountain scrambles.

Alaska State Parks offer more than 80 public-use cabins for rent year-round. These coveted cabins are booked months in advance, so make your reservation today! For more information visit <https://dnr.alaska.gov/parks/cabins/index.htm>.

Pitch a tent in the backcountry or slide your RV into a drive-in slip. With over 2,500 campsites and limitless backcountry settings, there is no shortage of camping options in Alaska State Parks. Explore the map inside for a list of developed campgrounds.

From high alpine tundra to temperate rainforests, the state's diverse landscapes are reflected in the parks, historic sites, recreation areas, trails, preserves, and special management areas that comprise the Alaska State Park System—a collection of 157 units ranging in size from the half-acre Potter Section House State Historic Site to the 1.6-million-acre Wood-Tikchik State Park.

Recreational opportunities are equally varied: hike through fields of lupine; pick blueberries under the midnight sun; snowmachine in Denali country; observe a pod of orcas from your sea kayak; or fish the world-famous Kenai River.

Alaska State Park units are an essential component of the Alaskan lifestyle, with locals participating in wilderness recreation at a rate twice that of the national average. Alaskans make up over two-thirds of the 5.4 million annual visitors to our parks. Outdoors is “where it’s at” in the last frontier, and with a square mile of land for every resident, we have plenty of room for you to find your Alaska!
