Office of History and Archaeology news

The Alaska Historical Commission met April 3. The Commission recommended funding for seven Certified Local Government grants from Anchorage, Mat- Su Borough, Seward, Sitka and Ketchikan. The grant recommendations have been submitted to the SHPO for consideration. Final grant award decisions will be made and applicants will be notified in early May.

In April, Governor Dunleavy appointed Joan Skilbred, Fairbanks, Alaska, to the Alaska Historical Commission. Congratulations Joan!

The Office of History and Archaeology (OHA) Survey Unit is recruiting for a permanent Archaeologist 1/2 position. The survey unit conducts cultural resource surveys for state and federal project sponsors across all of Alaska. This unit conducts cultural resource surveys for both state and federal project sponsors across Alaska—ranging from remote backcountry expeditions in the rugged interior to accessible front-country investigations in State Park units. This Anchorage-based position includes seasonal field travel.

The posting is live from April 8 through April 22, 2025 (5:00 pm).

Tax Credit Legislation Introduced

Bipartisan tax credit legislation was recently introduced in the Senate and House. The Revitalizing Downtowns and Main Streets Act (H.R. 2410), introduced by Rep. Mike Carey (R-OH) and Rep. Jimmy Gomez (D-CA), would create a new 20% tax incentive, modeled after the Historic Tax Credit (HTC), to convert older commercial properties and office space into affordable housing.

A new version of the Historic Tax Credit Growth and Opportunity Act (HTC-GO) was recently introduced by Sen. Cassidy (R-LA)/Sen. Warner (D-VA) in the Senate (S. 1459). New provisions include returning to a one-year delivery of the HTC, as well as a boost from 20% to 30% in credit and the ability to transfer credits for smaller and rural projects. Now that Congress has passed a budget resolution, the House Ways and Means Committee could pass a tax bill out of committee by early May.

Department of Interior

The Department of Interior, which includes the National Park Service, Bureau of Land Management and other agencies, is currently working on a massive reorganization. The reorganization is expected to consolidate a range of operations at Interior and across agencies including communications, financial management, contracting, human resources, grants, civil rights, and IT functions. More details about the reorganization plans are expected in the next couple of weeks.

National Park Service

Training

The National Park Service is hosting a training webinar on building codes and historic buildings for property owners, architects, developers, consultants, local landmark commissions, and the general public on May 2 and May 21 at 2 pm ET.

The training will focus on Preservation Brief 51: Building Codes for Historic and Existing Buildings: Planning and Maximizing their Application, issued in June 2024, and will, among other things, highlight alternative compliance methods available under model building codes for historic and existing buildings that can provide more flexible and less costly alternatives to meet state and local code requirements.

Preservation Brief 51 discusses how to meet the goals of building codes while preserving or minimizing alterations to the character-defining features, spaces, materials, and finishes of historic buildings. It also provides guidance for selecting the optimal code compliance method and suggests best practices for achieving code-compliant solutions that also allow for the preservation of a building's historic character.

Marilyn E. Kaplan, Architect, FAPT, author of the Brief, and Technical Preservation Services staff will present the webinar.

The NPS is offering the same webinar on two different dates for increased attendance opportunity. Registration is free and open to the public – please select one of the dates and use the registration links below. The webinar will be recorded and made available online in the future.

The recorded training webinar on the use of substitute materials on historic buildings exteriors is now available on demand on the TPS website. Presented by Technical Preservation Services staff in 2024, the webinar on the use of substitute materials, discusses Preservation Brief 16: The Use of Substitute Materials on Historic Building Exteriors and other revised information on the application and interpretation of the Secretary of the Interior's Standards for Rehabilitation, including considerations for the appropriate use of substitute materials and case-study examples.

The Preservation Brief, published in October 2023, provides a framework for evaluating when a different material than the historic one may be appropriately used to replace a deteriorated or missing historic feature, consistent with the Standards, as well as technical preservation information about materials commonly considered for use as a substitute material in the context of a historic rehabilitation project.

The information on the use of substitute materials was updated to be more consistent with other NPS guidance and information and to ensure that it continues to reflect current and best practices. The revised information takes into account such factors as availability, performance, location/visibility, code requirements, cost, and resilience of the proposed new and historic materials or features. The information continues to recognize that flexibility may be needed when it comes to new and replacement materials as part of a historic rehabilitation project.

The webinar is available on the TPS website \(see On Demand Training\).

Advisory Council on Historic Preservation

On January 20, 2025, President Donald Trump issued an Executive Order Declaring a National Energy Emergency in regard to the availability of domestic energy resources and production. In accordance with Section 2(a) of the Executive Order, the ACHP has identified existing emergency provisions in the Section 106 regulations that federal agencies may follow for any proposed undertaking that falls within the scope of the Executive Order. Please visit the ACHP's dedicated webpage regarding the Executive Order and the Section 106 emergency provisions. Frequently Asked Questions found there will be updated regularly.

ACHP announces that three of their eLearning courses are now back online! These include What is Section 106?; What Now? Protecting Historic Properties During Disaster Response; and Section 304 and Confidentiality. Visit the eLearning course webpage to check out these updated courses. Additional courses will be made available in the coming weeks.
